Slowly but surely. There is no point in doing things so fast but finishing nothing. We the citizens eagerly strive for success and by doing that we should not leave anyone behind.

Yes we are children, the new generation of our country and maybe someday the new leaders of our world. At our young age, you might consider us most vulnerable but by thinking that, you are already blind to see that we are already citizens of our country and that we are capable of serving it. In school, at home or in our community we can already be examples of good citizens. How? Well, in school by just studying hard and by sharing our talents to our dear schoolmates and to the less fortunate, many doors will open that will lead us to service for our fellow men. By volunteering in the projects and the reach-out activities made by the school. If we want to share our leadership and if we want change that has many benefits in our school, we can run for the election of our Pupils Council Organization. By helping our classmates who are having trouble catching up with their studies. By respecting and obeying the teacher and the staff. By not littering and by following the rules and regulations. And last but not the least, by encouraging our schoolmates to do the same.

Home is where the heart is right? We want everyone in our family to hold no grudge against each other. We have to be honest with our family members in order for them to know that we are bothered with some of their actions and things. We have to respect our elders every time. We must be patient with our younger siblings who irritate us almost every time. We should have quality time with our family members. We should not prevent anyone in our family to join the fun and laughter. We should be open to their questions and we should give them our ideas and answers in return. We should always help everyone in their chores. We should do our responsibilities inside the house. Treating anyone in your family fairly can also help. We don't have to be so bossy with anyone in our home. We should not get easily jealous and we should understand that anyone in our family is the same. Nobody's perfect and nobody is always right. By loving each other and by caring for each other you are already being good and putting smiles to their faces. Your family is the one thing you got forever. They would always be beside you wherever you might go or wherever you might be, they are always beside you and by doing this you are already setting harmony and peace in your family.

We always demand something from our community but have not demanded anything from ourselves. If we always keep on insisting and complaining something from our community, there must be a counterpart and that is us helping them. In our community there are people who are rich and people who are poor. Our community should not be divided. We should not judge anyone according to their lifestyle. We are all equal and we are all sons and daughter of God. We should help anyone in our community who is in need. If we want to set a good example, we must not do it next year, next week or tomorrow, but now. By promoting and participating in the projects made by the Barangay. We should report anything suspicious or bad to our officials to avoid any more trouble. We should help those who are new in the neighborhood. We should welcome everybody. We should also give a helping hand to some of the disabled or to our elders. We can also give alms and donations to some foundations in our barangay. We should not hesitate in voicing out our opinions to some of the officials or to our parents. Even if we are little, we already play a big part in our community. So, every little thing we do, all those simple things that we can do, are already helpful.

I firmly believe that we citizens play a big role in assuring our future. The government is not the only one who works. If a worm can help plants, we too can help our country bear fruits and values that can be shared to the whole wide world. Nothing is impossible when it comes from God so we must pray for the success of our leader, our country and ourselves. And with this we can help in spreading peace in our country together.
